

Commission for Research Partnerships with Developing Countries (KFPE)

The KFPE is the information hub for global research partnerships in Switzerland. It promotes efficient, effective, and equitable research cooperation with low- and middle-income countries. By doing so, the KFPE contributes to sustainable development and to solving local and global problems. more

Image: NASA

- KFPE-News
- Events
- Annual Conference +
- KFPE Guide
- Research Earth
- Swiss Projects
- Funding Possibilities
- Scholarships
- About KFPE +
- KFPE Publications

> Commission for Research Partnerships with Developing Countries > Annual Conference > Online Workshop Series

27.4.2023 Workshop

The Importance of Allyship and Empowerment in the

Good to know

Registered participants receive a Zoom-link to participate at the workshop.

More Information

Languages: English

The Importance of Allyship and Empowerment in the Decolonization of Research Partnerships – A Workshop

Time

09:00 – 12:00

Online Workshop Series 2023

Image: University of Bayreuth

Code lists several crimes of omission. When people who identify as White remain inactive in the face of racism, it is often because they do not know how exactly to respond, in other participate at the workshop.

More Information

Languages: English

x

Downloads/links

Registration Conference and Workshop-Series >

Mural Board >

Organiser: Danielle Isler (University of Bayreuth)

The saying 'Silence is Violence' has been around at least since the second Black Lives Matter wave in 2020. Inaction in the face of racism can be just as bad as effectively perpetrating racism. Failure to actions in certain situations are not as harmless as they seem. This is demonstrated, for example, by the fact that the Swiss Penal

Image: University of Bayreuth

Organiser: Danielle Isler (University of Bayreuth)

The saying 'Silence is Violence' has been around at least since the second Black Lives Matter wave in 2020. Inaction in the face of racism can be just as bad as effectively perpetrating racism. Failure to actions in certain situations are not as harmless as they seem. This is demonstrated, for example, by the fact that the Swiss Penal Code lists several crimes of omission. When people who identify as White remain inactive in the face of racism, it is often because they do not know how exactly to respond, in other words how to be allies. This workshop focuses on allyship an empowerment of BIPOC* in research partnerships. It begins with a theoretical section about the historicity of racism and follows with exercises on allyship and empowerment.

Please register for this workshop if you want to attend.

BiPoC is an acronym that stands for Black, Indigenous, and People of Color. The term PoC includes all people who are not White and are affected by racism.

Online Workshop Series: Decolonizing Swiss Research Collaborations

Reflective steps to unbundle decolonization - answering difficult questions

